For November 30, 2015

'Look, if it's not Tony Goldwyn, I don't know who that is ... The guy has a full head of hair, he doesn't work out, he eats doughnuts. He's got a six-pack.'

—SCOTT FOLEY, when asked to name the hottest guy in Shondaland, to People Now (see the whole interview on Nov. 19 at 8:30 a.m. ET on People.com)

'No one ever asks me out. I am lonely every Saturday night. Guys are so mean to me.'

—JENNIFER LAWRENCE, on being single, to Vogue

'Hello new thighs! You appeared out of nowhere but I am not mad at it!'

—CHRISSY TEIGEN, showing off her changing baby body, on Instagram

'When you can't go anywhere or do anything alone you get depressed. I would not wish this upon anyone.'

—JUSTIN BIEBER, on the ups and downs of fame, to NME

'I looked at my friend and said, "Are you seeing this?"'

—NICK JONAS, who said he's been obsessed with UFOs since a sighting about eight years ago, to This Morning

'Good fathers are sexy. They just are.'

—KERRY WASHINGTON, on seeing husband Nnamdi Asomugha in dad mode, to People at this year's Baby2Baby Gala

Q&A

Sullivan Stapleton

The actor stars on Blindspot, Mondays at 10 p.m. ET on NBC

Did you expect Blindspot to take off the way it has?

No! I knew it was a great script, but I didn't realize people would enjoy watching it as much as we enjoy making it. It's great.

Tattoos are a big part of the plot. Do you have any?

I've got one down my arm. It's written in Thai but translated to English. It says Animal Kingdom, after the film I did. I told the director if it did well I'd get a tattoo. It did well!

You're from Australia. Do you like filming and living in New York?

I fit right in. I love the straightforwardness of the people. And the food! It's a great multicultural city.

—JANINE RAYFORD RUBENSTEIN

'You look back, you think, well, this is actually kind of a good thing to talk about, introducing [the idea that] you could break up in a way where you remain a family, even if you're not in a couple.'

—GWYNETH PALTROW, reflecting on the criticism she received after referring to her divorce from Chris Martin as "conscious uncoupling," at the Fast Company Innovation Festival

Sexy Everywhere

When it came time to choose the Sexiest Man Alive for 2015, it wasn't enough to pick a guy who's, well, sexy; he also needed to measure up to being our poster boy for SMA's 30th anniversary. David Beckham is that man—a legendary beauty for a legendary franchise. Even I'm a little surprised that David has never held the title before, but I'm so glad he's here now. Of course you'll find many, many other sexy men in this issue—some with their pets, some doing chores and some showing off their dad bods (but trust me, these are not your father's dad bods). We also teamed up with Tinder to identify the sexiest, most right-swiped guys from all 50 states.

Tinder isn't the only one getting in on the action. If you haven't already, you can now create your own #SexiestBitmojiAlive avatar. At Madame Tussauds New York, you can get up close and personal with previous Sexiest Man Alive title holders like Johnny Depp and Harrison Ford in the Hall of Sexy. Thanks to Jimmy Kimmel for helping us make the big announcement once again, and Bellamy Young for hosting the Nov. 18 Sexiest Man Alive special on Lifetime. And thank you, David Beckham, for being more than a great sportsman. You're also a good sport.

• In this issue, 2015's Sexiest Man Alive David Beckham gives a rare, candid interview about his family life—and brings the sexy for photographer Marc Hom.

• Dating app Tinder helped us find the sexiest men from all 50 states, including Matthew Glasser from Michigan (left), and Shannon Norris from Delaware

Jess

JESS CAGLE, EDITORIAL DIRECTOR

• Sexiest Trainer Alive and author Angelo Grincer shows you an essential 4-minute daily stretch routine and looks good doing it. (Btw, I've taken classes and sessions with Angelo and can vouch for his advice).

• Thanks to two of the coolest New Yorkers alive for helping us celebrate SMA's 30th anniversary on their shows: Talk Stoop host Cat Greenleaf (above) and Watch What Happens Live host Andy Cohen (right), who's also one of 2015's Men of the Year.

• The Hall of Sexy at Madame Tussauds New York includes Denzel Washington, George Clooney and Brad Pitt.

• Michael Strahan plays a game of Sexy or Not.

PLUS

• Val Chmerkovskiy looks back on his greatest shirtless moments from Dancing with the Stars (are there any non-shirtless moments?).

• James Van Der Beek reads tweets about James Van Der Beek sightings (it happens a lot on Twitter apparently).

• Baby Daddy star Derek Theler discusses the art of acting (also he takes off his shirt).

You'll Find These (and Many More!) Fantastic Sexiest Man Alive Videos at PEOPLE.COM/SMA

• David Beckham looks back on his best hairstyles, explains British slang and invites you inside his photo shoot for Sexiest Man Alive.

Indications

Tamiflu is a prescription medicine used to treat the flu (influenza) in people 2 weeks of age and older who have had flu symptoms for no more than 2 days. Tamiflu can also reduce the chance of getting the flu in people 1 year and older. Tamiflu does not prevent bacterial infections that may happen with the flu. Tamiflu is not a substitute for an annual flu vaccination. Do not take Tamiflu if you are allergic to oseltamivir phosphate or any of the ingredients in Tamiflu.

Important Safety Information

If you have an allergic reaction or a severe rash with Tamiflu, stop taking it and contact your doctor right away. This may be very serious. People with the flu, particularly children and adolescents, may be at an increased risk of seizure, confusion, or abnormal behavior early during their illness. Let your doctor know if you are pregnant, nursing, have heart problems, breathing problems, a

What is Tamiflu?

TAMIFLU is a prescription medicine used to treat the flu (influenza) in people 2 weeks of age and older who have had flu symptoms for no more than 2 days. TAMIFLU may also prevent the flu in people who are 1 year of age and older.

It is not known if Tamiflu is:

- effective in people who start treatment after 2 days of developing flu symptoms
- effective for the treatment of the flu in people with long-time (chronic) heart problems or breathing problems
- effective in treating or preventing flu in people with weakened immune systems (immunocompromised)
- safe and effective for treating flu in children less than 2 weeks of age or preventing the flu in children less than 1 year of age

Tamiflu does not treat or prevent illness that is caused by infections other than the flu virus, nor prevent bacterial infections that may happen with the flu.

Tamiflu does not take the place of receiving a flu vaccination. Talk to your healthcare provider about when you should receive an annual flu vaccination.

Who should not take Tamiflu?

Do not take Tamiflu if you are allergic to oseltamivir phosphate or any ingredient in Tamiflu.

Before you take Tamiflu, tell your healthcare provider if you:

- have problems swallowing Tamiflu capsules
- have kidney problems or any other medical conditions
- have a history of fructose (fruit sugar) intolerance, because Tamiflu contains sorbitol that may cause upset stomach and diarrhea in people who are fructose intolerant
- are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if Tamiflu will harm your unborn baby
- are breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. It is not known if Tamiflu passes into your breast milk. You and your healthcare provider should decide if you will take Tamiflu while you are breastfeeding

Tell your healthcare provider about all medicines you take, including prescription or over-the-counter medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements.

Keep a list of medicines you take to show your healthcare provider when you get a new medicine.

How should I take Tamiflu?

- Take Tamiflu exactly as your healthcare provider tells you to. Tamiflu can be taken with food or without

THE FLU VIRUS IS A REALLY BIG DEAL.

With fever, aches, and chills, the flu virus needs a big solution: an antiviral. Antiviral Tamiflu attacks the flu virus at its source and helps stop it from spreading in the body. In studies, TAMIFLU helped shorten the time adults were sick by 1.3 days (30% sooner). At the first sign of flu symptoms, call your doctor right away.

ANTI-FLU?

weakened immune system (immunocompromised), kidney problems or other medical conditions, as Tamiflu may not be right for you. Also tell your doctor about any medications you are taking or if you've received a nasal-spray flu vaccine in the past two weeks. The most common side effects are mild to moderate nausea, vomiting, diarrhea and stomach pain.

Please see the Tamiflu full Prescription Information for complete important safety information.

You are encouraged to report side effects to Genentech by calling 1-888-835-2555 or to the FDA by visiting www.fda.gov/medwatch or calling 1-800-FDA-1088.

food. There is less chance of stomach upset if you take it with food

• If you miss a dose of Tamiflu, take it as soon as you remember. If it is 2 hours or less before your next dose, do not take the missed dose. Take your next dose of Tamiflu at your scheduled time. Do not take 2 doses at the same time

• If Tamiflu for oral suspension is not available or you cannot swallow Tamiflu capsules, your healthcare provider may instruct you to open Tamiflu capsules and mix the capsules' contents with sweetened liquids such as chocolate syrup (regular or sugar-free), corn syrup, caramel topping, or light brown sugar (dissolved in water)

• If your healthcare provider has instructed you to take Tamiflu oral suspension or open your Tamiflu capsules, read the detailed Instructions for Use in the full prescribing information.

Ask your pharmacist if you have any questions.

What are the possible side effects of Tamiflu?

Tamiflu may cause serious side effects, including serious skin and allergic reactions.

Stop taking Tamiflu and get medical help right away if you get any of the following symptoms:

- skin rash or hives
- blistering or peeling skin
- blisters or sores in your mouth
- itching
- swelling of your face, eyes, lips, tongue, or throat
- trouble breathing
- chest pain or tightness

• Change in behavior. People, especially children, who have the flu can develop nervous system problems and abnormal behavior that can lead to death. While taking Tamiflu, tell your healthcare provider right away if you or your child have confusion, speech problems, shaky movements, seizures, or start hearing voices or seeing things that are not really there (hallucinations).

The most common side effects of Tamiflu when treating the flu include nausea and vomiting. When preventing the flu they include nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, and stomach (abdomen) pain.

Tell your healthcare provider if you have any side effect that bothers you or does not go away. These are not all of the possible side effects of Tamiflu.

Keep Tamiflu and all medicines out of the reach of children.

General information about the safe and effective use of Tamiflu.

Medicines are sometimes prescribed for purposes other than those listed in the patient information leaflet. Do not use Tamiflu for a condition for which it was not prescribed. Do not give Tamiflu to other people, even if they have the same symptoms you have. It may harm them. If you want more information, talk with your healthcare provider.

You are encouraged to report side effects to Genentech by calling 1-888-835-2555 or to the FDA by visiting www.fda.gov/medwatch or calling 1-800-FDA-1088.

Jessa Duggar Seewald and husband Ben introduce their baby boy to the world.

'Wishing them all the best in their new roles'

Mary via people.com

For November 23, 2015

Jessa and Ben

Jessa is a true beauty, and I'm so happy for her and Ben! Congratulations! Margie via people.com

I am disappointed in your magazine for putting the Duggar family on the cover. This family does not represent the average family today. You should be giving credit to people who have actually accomplished something in life. There are many other people you could have highlighted. Cindy Giroux via e-mail

Glad that everything turned out well for this young family! Their baby is gorgeous! Lacey via people.com

Priyanka Chopra

Priyanka is such a talented, beautiful actress. It makes me sad and angry that she was bullied for her ethnicity and treated so awfully when she first came to the States. Hopefully the increase in racially diverse characters on TV will provide young people with even more identifiable role models. Emily via people.com

Hugging Dogs

Thank you so much for including a section about pets and their amazing effects on our lives. For many people, pets are our best friends, our heroes, our kids with fur. I donate time to animal shelters in my area that need my help, so I really enjoy stories like this. Cindy R. via people.com

For November 16, 2015

Leah Remini

I admire Leah Remini for breaking loose from Scientology and inspiring others to stand up for themselves. Shelly Edgerton Altoona, Iowa

I am a huge fan of Leah's, and my heart goes out to her for all she has endured. What most impresses me is the way she overcame her struggles with appreciation for them—and all she has learned. Mary Luhmann via e-mail

I commend Leah for speaking out. As a celebrity who receives constant attention, she probably would have preferred to keep such private details to herself. It must have taken a great amount of courage to speak her voice and go against something that was a part of her life for so long. Kayla R. Dadgar via e-mail

Robin Williams

It was truly heartbreaking to learn that Robin's brilliant mind—which brought an abundance of laughter to this world—also brought him so much pain. This article provided closure for his fans and added dignity to the end of his life.

Kathy Pacheco Estacada, Ore.

I am glad the public found out what led to comic legend Robin Williams's suicide. Dementia can be a terrible thing. Robin has been my idol since the old days of Mork & Mindy.

Charlene Zacks via e-mail

Shonda Rhimes

Bravo to Shonda for losing weight and making that life change. She's such an important role model for women, and I appreciate her honesty. Ty via people.com

Good for Shonda! Mistreating your body is like telling yourself, "I don't care about you. You don't matter."

KIM KARDASHIAN
WEST GETS REAL!

BABIES, HER BODY & HER FAMILY'S BIG YEAR

BY AILI NAHAS

KIM KARDASHIAN WEST is counting the days until the holiday season—and not for the gifts, tree-trimming or glamorous parties, but because the end of the year will bring the arrival of her second child (a son) and the farewell to a not-so-pleasant pregnancy. “It was hard for me to get pregnant [the second time], so I understand the struggle,” admits the 35-year-old star of E!’s Keeping Up with the Kardashians. “But God, is it a miserable experience!” In a refreshingly candid interview, she talks to People about expanding her family with husband Kanye West, life with 2-year-old daughter North and how her famous clan is coping following a turbulent year:

“I’m trying to make the best of this last pregnancy,” says Kim (in October and, inset, with sisters Khloé, Kendall and Kourtney and daughter North).

You’re in the home stretch!

How are you feeling?

KIM I’m so over it. Some women find pregnancy blissful. They feel sexy; they feel alive. I feel completely the opposite. I find it to be a miserable experience, and I’m always going to be truthful about that. I remember Kourtney saying how much she loved it, and I don’t love one moment of it. And that’s okay! It’s 1 billion percent worth it.

Do you and Kanye have a name picked out?

KIM We don’t. It’s, like, the last thing Kanye and I did when North was born. We didn’t name her for, like, seven days. I feel like it will just come to us. [When I ask North], “What should we name baby brother?” she says, “Baby brother!” [The kids] come up with different names all the time.

What do you feel most comfortable in, style-wise, this pregnancy?

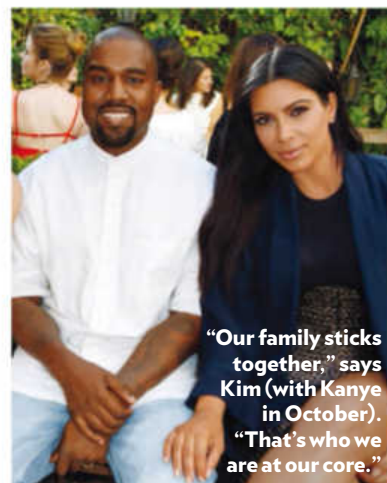

KIM This time I’m more comfortable in tighter things. I always wear longer coats to cover up the fat arms and back fat and my butt, but the bump is never the area to hide! The last pregnancy a lot of things were looser and more baby-doll-looking, and I don’t think that really works.

Your mom [Kris Jenner]’s boyfriend Corey Gamble has become a part of the family. Do you approve?

KIM He’s such a nice person, and it’s just been so fun to see my mom happy. She has had such a hard year, and it’s been refreshing to see her have a good time.

How is your relationship with Caitlyn [formerly Bruce] Jenner?

KIM It’s a journey. It’s always been an adjustment [following Jenner’s transition from male to female], but as time goes on our family gets stronger and we understand each other more. The communication is better. The place everyone is in now, it makes me really happy.

“Our family sticks together,” says Kim (with Kanye in October). “That’s who we are at our core.”

Kourtney went through a difficult split from her longtime boyfriend Scott Disick, and then he went to rehab. How is everyone doing?

KIM It had been the same cycle with those two, the same issues, for 10 years. Kourtney finally stood up for herself. She really has taken that stand. I admire how she’s wanted to just make the right decisions. I love to see her journey. It’s a hard one right now, but it’s bettering the family. We love Scott, and we’re so happy he’s getting help. When we do see him, he’s back to his old self. I don’t want to say anything too soon. But we’ll always be there, and we hope for the best.

Your family banded together to support Lamar Odom after he was hospitalized in October.

KIM When Lamar got sick, there was a rumor that we rushed to the hospital with cameras. It’s so ridiculous. We really do have private moments. And Lamar [who legally is still married to Kardashian West’s sister Khloé] will always be family, no matter how you look at it. Whenever anyone is going through something, we stick by each other, and we’re the best support system in the world.

CHARLIE SHEEN HIS STUNNING HIV NEWS

SOURCES CONFIRM THE
CONTROVERSIAL STAR IS HIV-POSITIVE
AS CONCERN MOUNTS FOR HIS FUTURE—AND FOR THOSE HE MAY HAVE PUT AT RISK

Over the years Charlie Sheen developed a reputation as many things: First as a Hollywood scion, who found stardom in his own right with 1986's Platoon and became the highest-paid actor on television with Two and a Half Men. More recently he has seemed deeply troubled, known to use drugs, famous for his love of prostitutes and fond of self-aggrandizing statements. But now the star, 50, is coming to terms with a sobering reality: Sources confirm to People that Sheen is HIV-positive. "It's been going on for quite a while," says top Hollywood publicist Howard Bragman, who was approached to handle Sheen's crisis management but did not end up representing him. "He's not necessarily comfortable talking about it. It was hard to get up the courage to talk about it."

At press time Sheen was due to discuss his diagnosis on the

Today show, but details of how he contracted the disease remained unknown. However, sources say those closest to Sheen—a father of five and grandfather of one—had long known about the situation, and believed he had only contracted the disease in the last few years, after his high-profile divorces from both Denise Richards and Brooke Mueller. (A source close to Richards says, "He was infected after they divorced, and they haven't been intimate since. Neither she nor their daughters [Sam, 11, and Lola, 9] are HIV-positive.")

'I DON'T SEE HIM
RISK... THAT'S NOT WHO HE
IS. HE'S A GOOD MAN'
—EX NATALIE KENLY

Of course the unabashed womanizer has had many women in his life since then: His ex-girlfriend, adult film star Bree Olson, said in a Twitter post that she did not contract the disease. And Natalie Kenly, who was known as one of Sheen's "Goddesses" and lived with him after his public meltdown in 2011, says she couldn't see him knowingly exposing his partners to the disease: "He is not a monster," says Kenly, adding that she does not have HIV. "That's not who he is. He's a good man, and I hope he's okay."

Now Sheen "has to be concerned about a fear of litigation from former sexual partners," says Bragman. "You don't take that lightly." Susan Moss, a New York family law attorney, says that could mean paying dearly: "He's at risk of losing civil judgments to all the lovers that he's had if he knew that he was infected and never told them." As for how Sheen himself is holding up, a source with knowledge of the situation says the star has recently been reporting to his inner circle that, thanks to antiretroviral drugs, there is "virtually no trace" of HIV in his blood. "He's telling people that the virus is now undetectable. That doesn't mean he isn't still HIV-positive," says the source, "but he's not about to let this diagnosis slow him down."

JEN GARNER
NOT
DATE

AFTER A VERY EMOTIONAL summer following her split from Ben Affleck, Jennifer Garner, 43, is “more relaxed lately,” says a source, and is “focusing on what makes her happy.” While that list includes her three children and her work, it has yet to include a new romance. “It will be a long time before she even cares to focus on dating,” says the source. Meanwhile, Affleck, 43—who has been working in Brunswick, Ga., and Boston on his upcoming film Live by Night—was back in Los Angeles on Nov. 14 and spent the day with Garner and their kids, decorating cupcakes and going to a toy store. Next up, the holidays. Adds the source: “They are trying to figure out how they can best spend them together.”

—MIA MCNIECE
with Pernilla Cedenheim

Affleck “has spent every possible hour of the day working,” says a source. “He’s the first to arrive and the last to leave.”

She told me to keep my heart open and have fun with it.” So who else would Lind like to play? “Drew Barrymore,” she says. “I love her attitude. She always has a smile on her face.”

GWEN STEFANI IS LEAVING HER heartbreak behind her. "I'm in a really good place," she told People Nov. 10 backstage at The Voice. Not that getting there was easy. In February the "Used to Love You" singer, 46, was blindsided after she discovered her now ex-husband Gavin Rossdale, 50, was having an affair, according to an insider (Rossdale has not commented on the allegations). "That was just the final straw. She put up with so much beyond that," says the Stefani insider, who adds the singer still tried to keep her family together following the affair. Now she is focused on her future, including her romance with Blake Shelton, 39. Adds a source: "They're thinking of taking a trip together."

JOEY FECK

A Mom's Brave Goodbye

DYING OF CANCER, THE 40-YEAR-OLD
STAR PLANS TO SPEND HER LAST DAYS WITH THOSE SHE LOVES MOST

Joey Feek says she's ready to die. This month the singer best known as half of the bluegrass-country duo Joey + Rory returned to her childhood home, a tranquil white farmhouse framed by cornfields in Alexandria, Ind. There, surrounded by family—including her husband, Rory Feek, 50, their 21-month-old daughter Indiana and Heidi and Hopie, Rory's adult daughters from a previous relationship—she intends to take her last breath. “I pray that one morning, I just don’t wake up,” she told the Tennessean newspaper. “But I don’t fear anything because I’m so close to God. I’m really at peace.”

It's a heartbreaking story that has brought the Feeks support far beyond

Nashville. After placing third on CMT's reality singing competition Can You Duet in 2008, they carved out respectable country and gospel careers, but their lives took a turn in 2014. Months after welcoming their daughter Indiana, who has Down syndrome, that February, Joey was diagnosed with cervical cancer. Then, last month, a CT scan revealed the disease had aggressively spread despite surgeries (including a radical hysterectomy), chemotherapy and radiation. “I felt like I failed at something,” Joey told the Tennessean, weeping in her parents' living room, an auburn wig covering her shaved head. “I thought I did everything. But God decided for me that my job of singing for people down here is my legacy, and he needs me singing up there.”

Rory has also found an outlet, posting emotional updates about his wife's illness on his blog This Life I Live. “Doctors gave us an estimate of how much time they believe that Joey has, and we both looked at the calendar that hangs by our kitchen door, then I took the calendar off the wall and threw [it] in the trash,” he wrote on Oct. 23. “So we don’t have forever. We’ve got right now. And that’s enough.” When the time comes, Rory will grant his wife's wish to be laid to rest in a wooden box with a cross on it at their property in Tennessee. In a Nov. 14 post, he added this final request from Joey: “[Leave] room enough beside my headstone for you to join me someday.” —NICK MASLOW

SWEET MEMORIES

1. “Perfect love filled that hospital room as we all held our breath and wiped our eyes,” Rory wrote of Joey’s nap with Indiana.
2. God “let us see and do things beyond our wildest dreams,” said Rory of his wife (in 2010).
3. “Joey is at peace with where she is and where she’s going. So am I,” said Rory (with Joey and Indiana in August).

PERSONAL STORIES ABOUT GIVING BACK

Barrymore visits with a CHLA family.

Drew Barrymore

The actress, 40, lends support to sick kids and their mothers

I first started working with Children's Hospital Los Angeles about three years ago. We wanted to do this kid-centric day with Flower Beauty, but they told us that the mothers don't often get to leave the hospital, so we decided to do an annual Mother's Day event right there. The children can play while their moms get treated to a day of beauty with hair and makeup stations. I remember walking into the room of a child who was on a respirator, and the mother and I recognized each other. She had been kind enough to give me and my kids [Olive, 3, and Frankie, 1] their table in a coffee shop two weeks earlier. Now she was telling me about how one day her daughter was fine and the next day she wasn't. It tapped into all my fears as a mother, and I was so moved. When my girls get older, I want them to know that you have to get outside yourself and help. It's just a powerful thing.

A DOZEN COOL THINGS TO SEE, HEAR, READ AND DOWNLOAD THIS WEEK

Lawrence (with Natalie Dormer) returns as the Girl on Fire in a fan-pleasing sequel that concludes her epic journey.

No. 1 The Hunger Games: Mockingjay Part 2

Jennifer Lawrence takes her last shot as the Mockingjay in a fierce, satisfying finale

MOVIE FANTASY The Hunger Games began with the soul-annihilating idea that a society would sacrifice children to maintain order. It will end that way too. As the rebels advance on the Capitol, Katniss (Lawrence), Peeta (Josh Hutcherson) and Gale (Liam Hemsworth) aim to kill President Snow (Donald Sutherland), even if it means defying their own leader, Coin (Julianne Moore). With hellish booby traps littering the streets, they'll be lucky to survive the night, much less carry off a coup. Part 2 ends as it should—with important moral issues, lots of spectacle and Lawrence giving it her all as a child forced to grow up not just too fast but too brutally. No. 2 Creed MOVIE

DRAMA Even in 2015, the Rocky franchise can't be declared down for the count. This surprisingly meaty reboot-sequel, directed by Fruitvale Station's Ryan Coogler with a sure eye for crisp, gritty detail, is the tale of breakout boxer Adonis Johnson (Fruitvale's Michael B. Jordan), son of the late, great Apollo Creed. His trainer? One Rocky Balboa of Philadelphia. Sylvester Stallone, moving and sounding like a man full of pebbles, returns to the role with gruff, unshakable sentimentality. How else would you want your Rocky? (Nov. 25, PG-13)

Michael B. Jordan, as Rocky's protégé, is getting strong now—won't be long now.

#1 SALON BRAND WORLDWIDE

Rogen, Mackie and Gordon-Levitt bring the love—and the seasonal cheer—in a raunchy adventure.

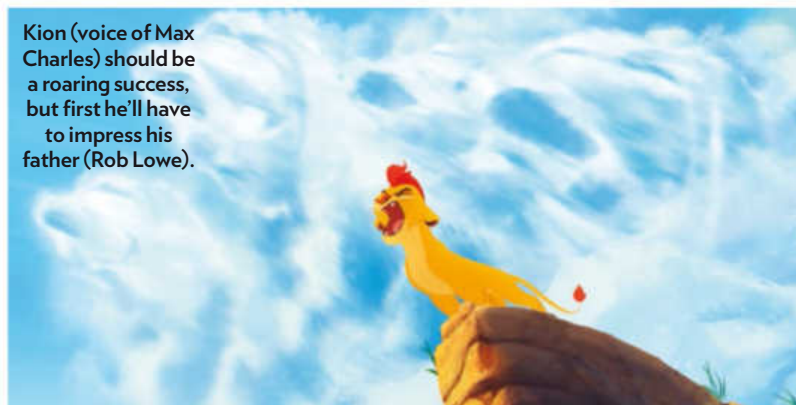

No. 3 The Night Before

Ho, ho, ho! Seth Rogen is jolly holiday company

MOVIE

COMEDY It's the holiday season, which means there are lots of great films out.

But if all that high-end drama gets you down, chill with these guys. Rogen, Joseph Gordon-Levitt and Anthony Mackie play old pals ending their Christmas Eve hangouts with one last crazy night. It starts with karaoke, picks up with Michael Shannon as a philosophical pot dealer (is there any other kind?) and ends at the North Pole. All of the actors are funny, but Rogen steals it as an expectant dad who decides to get so high he goes sideways. (Nov. 20, R)

Kion (voice of Max Charles) should be a roaring success, but first he'll have to impress his father (Rob Lowe).

No. 4 The Lion Guard: Return of the Roar

TV

ANIMATION Disney will be introducing a Lion King TV series in 2016, so consider this upbeat special an opening act to the mane event. Young Kion, scion of Simba, assembles a new defensive team for the pride, but he brings in non-lions, including a honey badger and an egret. To Simba, sadly, such thinking outside the box isn't much better than throwing yourself into a tiger pit. But in the end Kion does him, and the pride, proud. (Disney, Nov. 22, 7 p.m.)

No. 5 Grimes, *Art Angels

MUSIC

POP Grimes's

pinched, ethereal voice suggests Tinker

Bell on club night, and her immersive production is a bell jar that echoes with beats, pings and (occasionally) shrieks. She's offbeat, obviously, but her songs are rooted in melodies that deliver strong, irresistible hooks. Crank this up when you wake up in a really good mood and want to keep it going all day.

Jessica (Ritter) uses her strength only when she has to—a need that becomes increasingly frequent.

No. 6 Marvel's Jessica Jones

Krysten Ritter as a superhero who'd rather sleuth

NETFLIX

ACTION A sort of companion piece to Netflix's other Marvel series,

Daredevil, Jones is also its antithesis: While Daredevil is a superhero origins story, Jones is about a woman who's been there, done that and won't be listing any special powers on her LinkedIn profile. Now working as a private eye, Jones (Ritter) wants to forget a tragic incident from the past. If she'd seen Chinatown, she'd know that's not an option—just because you quit being a superhero doesn't mean your nemesis will agree to be a frenemy. Like Daredevil, this is stripped down, tough and very compelling. Ritter, who looks like Pugsley Addams's dream babysitter, is suitably dour with malcontentedness. (Launches Nov. 20)

Mara and Blanchett play women who know in a glance what they mean to each other.

No. 7 Carol

Cate Blanchett and Rooney Mara take enormous risks as they fall in love

MOVIE

ROMANCE In the 1950s, a time when women were expected to be perfect, Carol Aird (Blanchett) very nearly is, with her glossy hair, affluent taste and refined grace. If she'd just stop sleeping with women, her estranged husband (Kyle Chandler) might give her some peace. But Carol won't, or can't, and despite her exquisite poise she sometimes has the quick, desperate look of a hunted animal. Engaged shopgirl Therese (Mara) knows nothing of Carol's drama when they meet, their connection instant and electric. Their yearning is all the more urgent as they each try to break from men who feel entitled to them. Blanchett and Mara are lovely foils, one knowing and justifiably terrified, the other skittish with awakening. The film is, in a word, perfect. (Nov. 20, R)

No. 8 Chris Young, I'm Comin' Over

MUSIC

COUNTRY If it's a classic "bro" number you're hankering after, the burly, bearded Young offers "Sunshine Overtime," a tequila-fueled ode to pickup trucks and tan lines. Otherwise, though, his fifth album aims for something more reflective and sensitive, but without sacrificing either storytelling or twang. The nostalgic "Think of You," a duet with Cassadee Pope, is about the repercussions of a breakup, while "You Do the Talkin'"—a gem—captures the fluttery hope of a budding romance. Trying to get over a bruised heart? This album is for you.

No. 9 The Man in the High Castle

It's springtime for Hitler in the United States of America

AMAZON

DRAMA As alternate-history fantasies go, Castle conceptually isn't all that original: What if Japan and Germany won World War II, then went Dutch on divvying up America? But there's a mind-bending twist to Castle (based on a Philip K. Dick novel). The Axis authorities want to stamp out baffling evidence of a history that's alternate to theirs: contraband newsreel footage of an Allied victory. The show also makes unsettlingly good use of "Edelweiss" from The Sound of Music. Captain von Trapp would blow his whistle until his head exploded. (Launches Nov. 20.)

Rufus Sewell as a man born in the U.S.A.—and made an officer by the Nazis.

Smollett, better known as Empire's Jamal Lyon, shines on the 19-song set.

No. 10 Empire: Season 2, Volume 1 MUSIC SOUNDTRACK

If there's anything more delicious than Empire's Cookie (Taraji P. Henson), it's the FOX drama's radio-ready R&B and hip-hop—much of it performed by the cast. Jussie Smollett is the standout here. Belting out party anthems with Pitbull ("No Doubt About It") and pick-me-up ballads with Alicia Keys ("Powerful"), he's destined for crossover success.

WEEK

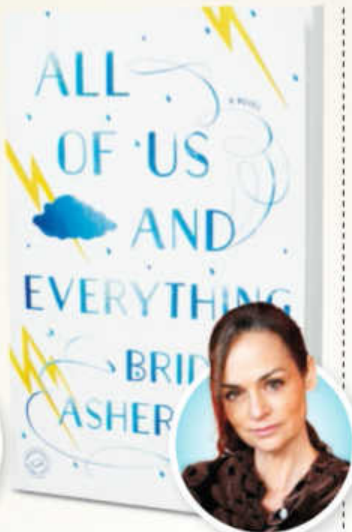

No. 12 The Best New Books

A musical fable from Mitch Albom, an engaging family drama and an extreme climber's astonishing memoir EDITED BY KIM HUBBARD

Alex Honnold Alone on the Wall

MEMOIR A “free soloist” climber (he uses no ropes or gear), Honnold here recounts his ascents on some of the world’s most dangerous rock walls. You’ll come away questioning his sanity for choosing this controversial sport: More than half of the extreme climbers in the last 50 years have died. But it’s also impossible not to feel awe.

Bridget Asher All of Us and Everything

NOVEL There’s drama on the Jersey Shore after a long-hidden cache of letters is found amid the wreckage of Hurricane Sandy. Will the three Rockwell sisters finally find out who their father was? An indulgent, lively comic novel about stormy women and the spy (and other sexy types) who loved them.

Mitch Albom The Magic Strings of Frankie Presto

NOVEL Sent to America as a child to escape Spain’s civil war, Francisco Presto arrives with a guitar and six strings—which, he learns, magically turn blue whenever his lovely playing alters a life. As Frankie travels the country, encountering Duke Ellington and Elvis Presley, Lyle Lovett and Little Richard (he’s a musical Forrester Gump), Albom’s fable about the power of song carries you along like a beautiful melody.

NEW IN NONFICTION

David Andrews Why Does the Other Line Always Move Faster?

A fascinating study of the phenomenon of “queuing,” as they say in Britain (where oh-so-proper looters were once observed lining up during a riot).

Laurie Ann Levin Life in Life

Psychologist Levin instructs readers on using meditation to “live longer, strengthen your relationships and create healthier lives.” It’s the holiday season—we’ll need it.

Warren Zanes Petty

Rock legend Tom Petty opens up to his friend and fellow musician Warren Zanes in this biography. The dizzying rise to fame, the heroin addiction.... Intimate and revealing.

SHOCKING TERROR, ENDURING GRACE

After terrorists kill at least 129 in the City of Light, acts of courage and kindness shine through the darkness

SCENES OF GRIEF

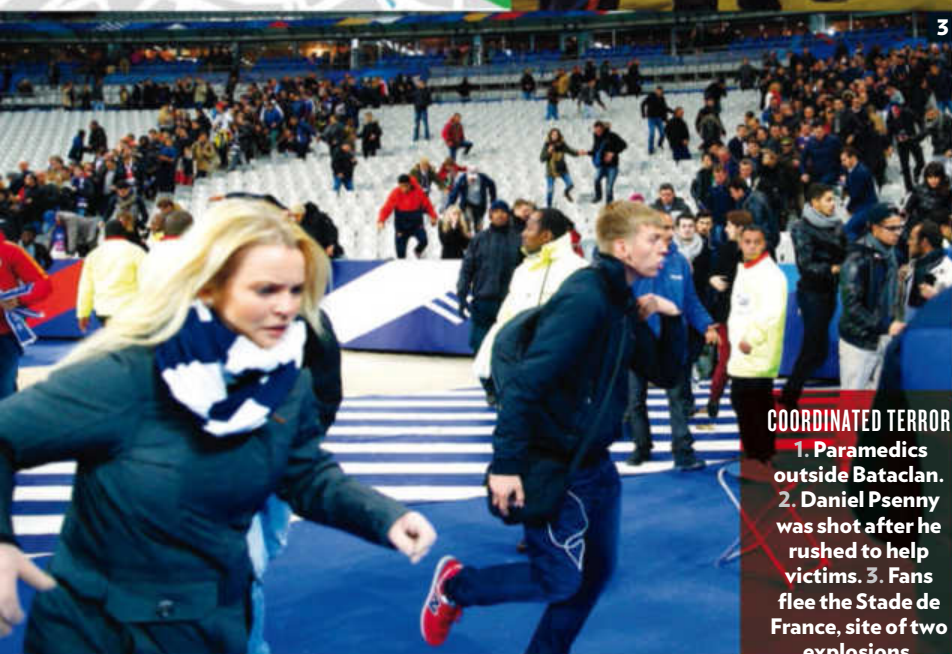

"It's an attack against freedom," says U.S. Ambassador to France Jane Hartley. Both pages: Visitors gathered on Nov. 16 near Le Petit Cambodge restaurant, site of one of the attacks.

COORDINATED TERROR

1. Paramedics outside Bataclan. 2. Daniel Psenny was shot after he rushed to help victims. 3. Fans flee the Stade de France, site of two explosions.

In the hours after the Nov. 13 terrorist attacks on Paris, psychologist Jean-Pierre Vouche knelt in blood as he worked to provide counseling to victims and their families. Among those he spoke with: 8-year-old Tess Reibenberg, whose mother was killed at La Belle Equipe, the family's restaurant on the Rue de Charonne and one of six locations where Islamic State terrorists slaughtered mothers, fathers, sons and daughters. The night after the coordinated strikes, "Tess said to me, 'Is it true that Mommy is dead?' I said, 'Yes, ma chérie,'" recalls Vouche, 65, a friend of Tess's father, Grégory Reibenberg. "She asked, 'Is there an antidote against death?' I said, 'No, darling. But we can communicate with her. You choose a star you like, and that's your mother. We can talk to her that way.' She said, 'But the sky is cloudy. I can't see any stars!' So I had a key ring with a little red laser light, and I shined it into the sky and said, 'There's a star for you.' And she spoke to the star and said, 'I waited for you last night, but you never came. And Papa was crying all the time. I miss you.'"

The heartbreak, grief and shock that tore through the City of Light quickly echoed around the world. During 33 minutes of horror, seven suicide bombers used explosives and high-powered assault rifles to wage war on civilians. The Islamic State (also known as ISIS and ISIL) claimed responsibility for the attacks, which began on Nov. 12 in Beirut, Lebanon, with two suicide bombings that killed 43. The terrorist group called the Paris strikes "the first of the storm" in apparent retaliation for the U.S.-led air campaign against Islamic State targets in Iraq and Syria. At press time 129 had been killed and 352 injured as Belgian and French authorities continued searching for Salah Abdeslam, one of two brothers believed to be connected to the attacks (the other was killed; a third brother was detained and released). "These were attacks against innocent people," Jane Hartley, the U.S. Ambassador to France, told People. "People were out at the end of a hard week, enjoying dinner, a drink, going to hear music. This was an attack against us all.”

As counterterrorism officials worked to piece together the chilling plot, survivors shared their accounts of the carnage—and the moments of grace and heroism that shone through the darkness. “I had people die in my arms,” says Jean Pierre (he declined to give his last name), a Paris dentist who was outside La Belle Equipe with his two sons when gunmen started firing around 9:36 p.m. “I took one woman in my arms, held her and told her, ‘Don’t move.’ I will never comprehend what I saw. I saw people seated in the restaurant, dead. Some were still holding on to a glass. Others were slumped forward on the tables, like they were sleeping. There was nothing more you could do.”

Minutes later at the Bataclan theater, where the American band Eagles of Death Metal were performing for a crowd of 1,500, three militants stormed in and unleashed a hail of gunfire. While none of the band members perished in the massacre, Nick Alexander, 36, a merchandise manager for the group, was fatally shot. Survivor Helen Wilson, 49, told The Telegraph that as gunmen methodically murdered attendees—including targeting concertgoers in wheelchairs—she tried to give Alexander mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and held him as he struggled to breathe. “Our beloved Nick lost his life at the Bataclan last night,” his family wrote in a statement. “Nick was not just our brother, son and uncle, he was everyone’s best friend—generous, funny and fiercely loyal. Nick died doing the job he loved, and we take great comfort in knowing how much he was cherished by his friends around the world.”

Other harrowing moments unfolded as the bloodshed spread across the city: In a video seen by millions, a pregnant woman dangled from a window at the Bataclan 50 ft. above the street as she desperately tried to escape. A stranger who identified himself as Sébastien told La Provence that he had been clinging to an air vent outside another window when he realized the woman couldn’t hold on much longer, so he went back inside to pull her to safety. (They both survived.) There were countless other examples of kindness too: Taxi drivers switched off their meters when the city was placed under curfew, and the majority of the Paris Métro was suspended around the city, while Parisians opened their homes to anyone seeking refuge, using the social media tag #PorteOuverte (“open door”). A 14-year-old boy named Mathieu, whose family asked People not to share his last name, says that as police brought victims to a courtyard nearby, “we offered them soft drinks and some covers that my friend's mother had, as it was cold. Many of them were crying or in shock. I was in shock myself."

Fleeing a panicked street scene, Irish professor Paddy Gray, 58, was one of a half dozen strangers who were welcomed into the local home of Robert Normand. "He protected us and kept an eye on us until we were all safe," recalls Gray. "I had never met him in my life. He just brought us all in. It was an amazing act of kindness."

The day after the attacks, 34-year-old pianist Davide Martello, who drove 400 miles from his native Germany, pulling his piano on a trailer behind him, parked near the Bataclan theater and did something extraordinary: He began to play. As the notes of John Lennon's iconic peace anthem "Imagine" rang out over the bloodstained streets, "it was a very deep, crazy moment," he says. He later did the same at the other attack sites. "The Parisians around me were singing," he recalls. "They were very thankful, shouting, 'Merci! Merci! Merci!' It was a feeling for a little moment like you forgot what happened."

'This was an attack against us all'
—JANE HARTLEY, U.S. AMBASSADOR TO FRANCE

For Jean-Pierre Vouche and all those who witnessed the violence and death firsthand, there will be no forgetting. "The victims I tended to are destroyed," he says. "They don't want to believe what's happened. They call the cell phones of their friends and loved ones and the phones ring in the morgue."

But amid all the horror, unbreakable bonds were forged as well. After he tried to comfort young Tess, whose mom had died in the arms of her father, Grégory—"I told her that her mother had whispered in my ear that she missed her too and was sorry she had to go," Vouche recalls—Tess's grandmother took him aside. "She said to me, 'You know we are Jewish. And you are Muslim. But we have gained a son, and Grégory has gained a brother.'"

THE ALASKAN BUSH

Returning home after four days out on the open sea off the coast of Alaska, the Brown family look around their modest home in dismay, assessing the damage caused by an unwanted visitor: a 1,500-lb. brown bear. “Well, the kitchen is destroyed,” Ami, the matriarch of the family of nine, says as she exits their two-story wooden home, constructed just last December after the family had spent three months living in a tent. Surveying the room, the family see their personal items strewn across the floor and the front window smashed. Ami wipes her hands on her jacket and says with a sigh, “He didn’t eat all the food, though. He was just curious.”

Seeing one’s home upended by a ferocious beast would likely be shocking to most, but for the Brown family—Bill, 62, Ami, 52, and their seven children, sons Matt, 33, Bam, 31, Bear, 28, Gabe, 25, and Noah, 23, and daughters Snowbird, 21, and Rain, 13—it comes with the territory of living off the grid, deep in the wilds of southern Alaska. “There’s always a boat that sinks or a bear that gets in your house,” says patriarch Bill, whose family document their unusual lifestyle for a weekly audience of almost 5 million on the Discovery Channel reality show Alaskan Bush People (Wednesdays at 9 p.m.). “That’s the way it is here. You build something, it gets destroyed, you build it back up. You persevere because you love it here. You want to stay. It’s home.”

SURVIVING—AND THRIVING—WITH 7 CHILDREN IN REMOTE, RUGGED ALASKA ISN'T EASY, BUT REALITY STARS BILL AND AMI BROWN WOULDN'T HAVE IT ANY OTHER WAY

By PATRICK GOMEZ

MEET THE BROWNS

"We don't live on a clock. We have the freedom to do whatever we want," son Noah (far right) says of life with his siblings and parents (from left: Matt; Snowbird, a.k.a. Bird; Joshua Bam Bam; Rain; Ami; Bill; Gabe; and Solomon, a.k.a. Bear).

Photographs by TURE LILLEGRAVEN

1. Standing outside the family home damaged by the bear, Gabe admits, "Everything out here is dangerous." 2. "Running makes me feel like I'm flying," says Bear, who is known for his inability to casually walk anywhere. 3. "I can create whatever I need," says Noah, the tinker of the family.

'LIVING IN THE BUSH GIVES ME THE FREEDOM TO BE MYSELF AND EXPRESS

The Browns weren't always so adventurous. Raised in small towns in North Texas, Bill and Ami wed in 1979 and started a life in nearby Fort Worth. "We settled down and tried to do everything 'right,'" says Bill, who started a small plumbing company. "But I came home one night and told Ami, 'I don't know if I can do a 9-to-5 the rest of my life.'" To Bill's delight, Ami felt the same. "We didn't really know where we wanted to go, but we knew we weren't where we wanted to be," says Ami.

The couple traveled around the "lower 48" states until 1983, when they decided to sell their truck and Bill's tools and buy tickets on a ship heading to Alaska. "We had $13 and some cents," Ami says of arriving in the Land of the Midnight Sun "dead broke" with their first two sons, Matt, then 3, and Joshua (who goes by Bam, a shortened version of the middle name given to him in honor of his great-grandfather's love of the Flintstones character Bamm-Bamm), then 1. As they approached their first winter in Alaska, they accepted a friend's offer to stay in his trapper shack on an island approximately 50 miles from the city of Wrangell. "We ended up stranded on that island for 18 months," says Bill. "The Good Lord just made us slow down. After we realized we weren't going to die, we fell in love with everything." Eventually a skipper came upon the family and offered them a ride to the nearest town. "[The skipper] said,

'You can have your lives back,'" says Bill. "But Ami and I looked at each other, and we knew we didn't want that."

The Brown children ended up essentially growing up in the wild. Matt cut his first tooth on a beaver rib. Rain, the baby of the family, was afraid to walk on land after being raised on a boat for the first years of her life. But even as Bill and Ami took odd jobs and sold pelts to survive, their seven kids "didn't realize everyone doesn't live like we do," says youngest son Noah.

Entertainment isn't easy to come by in the bush. But when out on a boat, the family would barter or trade with other fishermen for whatever books and VHS tapes were available. Since DVDs don't hold up well in the wilderness, getting new releases can be difficult: Ami says they've watched the 1987 Kurt Russell and Goldie Hawn film Overboard "about 500 times." When on land, the family can find pleasure simply watching copper wire spark in the fire for hours. "Growing up was a lot like living in Neverland," says Matt, who was homeschooled by his mother and in turn helped educate his younger siblings. "We were just bush hoodlums." Life got a little more "polished" for the family after daughters Snowbird and Rain came along, but, really, "they're just as hardcore as us boys," says Matt.

After years of living mostly on their own, the family took on their own dialect of English (and their own accents) with the phrase "goodbye, I love you" being replaced by the succinct word "more." And when a producer approached them about doing the show after reading one of Bill's self-published autobiographies, it took some convincing to get the Brown children on board. But now even the staunchest holdout, Bear, concedes that it's "cool" to share their lives with the world. The family is well aware of the skeptics who claim they are faking their lifestyle for the cameras and the critics who question the legality of their life off the grid, but Ami says she's received only "words of hope and encouragement" from fans.

As the oldest sons approach their mid-30s, none of the Browns show any signs of wanting to leave their family property (known as Browntown), where Bill and Ami live with the girls in the new home and each son has his own living quarters—ranging from a tent to a tree house to a wooden shed. "I'd like to find a lady and have a little Matt running around one day," says the oldest son. "But I don't see myself moving away from my support system." Adds Gabe: "We persevere by sticking together as a family. It's hard living, but I wouldn't have it any other way." ●

What I Know Now

THE OSCAR WINNER
REVEALS WHAT SHE'S LEARNED ABOUT LOVE,
GOSSIP...AND NUDITY

By MIA McNIECE

"I think I am very lucky,"
says Mirren
(at age 22).

1. CLOTHING OPTIONAL
“It was like showing up for a nudist camp every day,” says Mirren of her revealing role in 1979’s Caligula.

2. HER MAJESTY
Mirren won an Oscar for her portrayal of Queen Elizabeth II in 2006’s The Queen.

3. GOSSIP GIRL
“She is an iconic character,” Mirren (with costar Bryan Cranston) says of gossip columnist Hedda Hopper, whom she plays in Trumbo.

Among Hollywood royalty, Helen Mirren is the queen. The London-born actress, 70, has earned an Oscar, two Golden Globes and four Emmys and shows no sign of slowing down. In her new film Trumbo she portrays red-baiting gossip columnist Hedda Hopper, whom she describes as a “powerful woman with a big personality.” Offscreen Mirren prefers a quieter life, shunning social media for sewing and watching Game of Thrones with her husband, director Taylor Hackford, 70. She’s also refreshingly blunt. Her best advice for a young actor? “Be on time, and don’t be an a-----.”

In relationships, pace yourself.

My husband did a beautiful thing when we were first together. I came to visit him at his office, and I was really upset. I was questioning what I was doing in L.A. and why I was with this guy I didn’t comprehend. There was a little path leading down the side of the studio where he worked, and he said, “Do you see that path? We have just stepped onto that pathway. We have all that way to go. Don’t worry.” It was such a wonderful, truthful thing to say. I immediately relaxed and thought, “Yeah, we have just started on our path.”

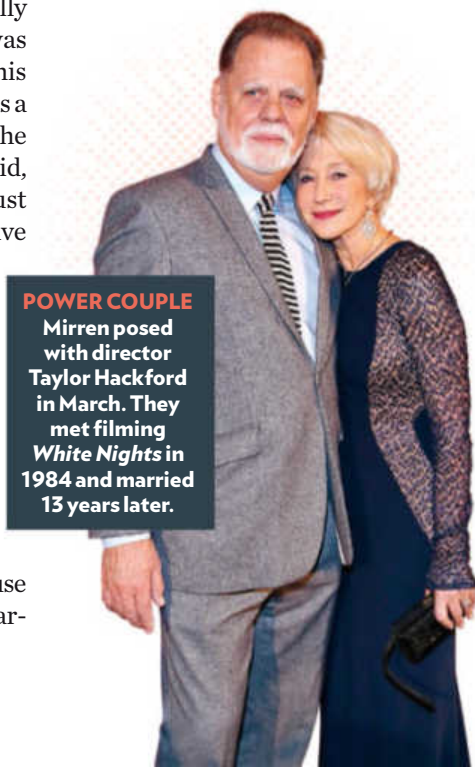

Don’t be the only one naked.

I was always afraid [of nude scenes]. It’s not fun to be on a set and be one of the only ones naked. The best was Caligula, because everyone was naked. You felt embarrassed if you had your clothes on!

Honesty defeats gossip.

With the coming of the Internet, the phrase that came to my mind was “There is nowhere to run, nowhere to hide.” The whole concept of privacy and control over your image is over. Everyone has a camera and wants a selfie. My approach is to be honest. Be careful—you don’t have to say everything—but just be as honest as possible.

POWER COUPLE
Mirren posed with director Taylor Hackford in March. They met filming White Nights in 1984 and married 13 years later.

The secret to playing royals is respect.

The most important thing about playing the Queen is the people around you. If she walked into the room, we would immediately stand up and say, “Yes, Your Majesty.” But she’s just a little old lady coming in. That’s the trick with playing royalty. It has nothing to do with how you perform. It’s making sure the people around you, the extras, the other actors, give you the status.

Life is too short to spend it in the gym.

Someone once said, “If I could be carried from the living room to the dining room, I would be.” That is my philosophy. I occasionally do a bit of gym stuff but can only keep it up for about two weeks, and then it all goes to pot. I am a bit European like that. ●

LOVE

AS HER NEW MOVIE BY THE SEA HITS THEATERS, THE WRITER-DIRECTOR-STAR REFLECTS ON HER HEALTH SCARES, HER KIDS AND WHY SHE'S HAPPY TO GROW OLD WITH HUSBAND BRAD PITT

By MARY GREEN

Calling from her production office in Cambodia, Angelina Jolie Pitt notes with a laugh, "I'm surrounded by toys. We have 250 children in a scene, so I filled the house, my car, my trailer with toys. It's my 'I love babies' fix." Jolie Pitt's own kids (Maddox, 14, Pax, 12, Zahara, 10, Shiloh, 9, and twins Knox and Vivienne, 7) are growing up fast, and now she's managing even more youngsters as she prepares to shoot First They Killed My Father, about the Khmer Rouge genocide. She has a familiar production assistant on the crew—Maddox, who also worked for his mom on her new movie By the Sea. The movie, about a troubled married couple in 1970s France, is her first onscreen collaboration with her husband, Brad Pitt, since 2005's Mr. & Mrs. Smith. Jolie Pitt, who wrote and directed, says playing spouses on the rocks brought her and Pitt, 51, even closer—as do their real-life disagreements. “It strengthens a relationship if you can pass those big fights and those big things where you really come head-to-head,” she explains. Making the movie, we knew we were beating each other up. But we agreed to see how far we could push each other.” This year she leaned on Pitt when she had her ovaries and fallopian tubes removed to prevent cancer, following her 2013 double mastectomy. (Her mother, Marcheline Bertrand, died of ovarian cancer in 2007, and she inherited the BRCA1 mutation.) Jolie Pitt says she is still cancer-free and feeling good. “I’m older and have been through some things,” she says of turning 40. “There’s a real beauty to having lived.”

The movie is in some ways a study in dealing with grief. What inspired it?

I wrote it wanting to come to terms with my mother’s death. Not just her death but an unfulfilled life. She was very happy as a mother, but there were things she wanted to do but was unable or too scared to do.

You and Brad have some big fights in the movie. How did you make sure those feelings didn’t linger?

We had all our kids there with us. Every morning we would walk them to school, and every night we were coming home to our children.

They’re the greatest reminder of what actually matters. We may have been having big fights on the set during the day, but at night we were tag-teaming on the bedtime story. As much as we can argue and fight, and we all have our challenges, at the end I say, “My job is to love him.”

Maddox worked on the film as a production assistant. How was that?

Every time we had a fight scene or sexual scene he obviously couldn’t be near us. So he had to work in the parking lot. But he read the scenes of the day—I didn’t even know! One day he came up to me and said, “Really interesting script, Mom.” He’s an old 14, and we have very honest talks about life.

You have a couple of topless scenes. Why did you decide to do them?

It was written before I had the mastectomy. And then when I realized I was shooting the film, it did cross my mind to cut certain things. But I felt that was the wrong thing to do. That’s hiding something, and I just don’t believe in that. And then during the edit I got the call that I might have cancer and had to have my ovaries removed.

How did you deal with turning 40?

I wouldn’t want to be in my 20s or 30s again. I’m someone who didn’t think I would live very long. I’ve been worried about death and cancer and life. I think I’ve lived very much for the day. Now I’ve settled into my life with my children and Brad.

You’re 40, Brad is 51. Do you guys ever joke about getting older?

Yeah, just how much we like it. We both appreciate the beauty in looking at each other and thinking, “God, you’re just getting stranger as you’re getting older.” Brad and I are fortunate because we see the beauty in each other’s changes. I’m more interested in his 50-year-old self than his 40-year-old self. And then you look forward to even more years together. ●

CARLY

IN AN INTIMATE INTERVIEW
AND EXCERPT FROM HER
NEW MEMOIR, THE SINGER-
SONGWRITER LOOKS BACK

Life

By KIM HUBBARD

Photographs by MARTIN SCHOELLER

She may be rock and roll royalty, but to the locals on Martha's Vineyard, Carly Simon's home for the past few decades, she's just another islander. Even on the streets of New York City, the singer-songwriter of "Anticipation" and "You're So Vain" fame doesn't get recognized the way she used to. "It's a relief in a way," says Simon, 70, settled in for an interview in her fanciful, eclectic home (guitar-patterned entryway floor, chalk paint set up for crafting in the kitchen). "But it's bittersweet," she adds with a laugh. "'Hey, wait—hey! I'm Carly Simon!' There's a little bit of that."

Her new memoir, Boys in the Trees, reveals just how extraordinary that identity has been, beginning with her privileged childhood as one of Simon & Schuster cofounder Richard Simon's four children, moving on to fame, romantic dalliances with the likes of Jack Nicholson, Warren Beatty and Mick Jagger, and a stormy 10-year marriage to James Taylor, with whom she has two children (Ben, 38, a musician, and Sally, 41, also a musician and the mother of Simon's grandson Bodhi, 8). The road hasn't been smooth: A dreamy, anxious, stuttering child—"kind of a loser," Simon says—she had sexual

PERFECT HARMONY
 Son Ben, who lives in a house on his mom's property, is "one of the best songwriters I know," says Simon (with him at home on Nov. 3).

'At times I thought, "I shouldn't be writing this!" But it's the full story. I didn't want to leave important things out' encounters initiated by an older boy for years starting at age 7 ("It was heinous. It changed my view about sex for a long time"). She battled crippling stage fright, and the end of her marriage to Taylor in 1983 shook her to her core. Taylor, 67, now married for the third time with 14-year-old twin sons, "hasn't talked to me for years," she says. "I think, 'What did I do?' The answer is I don't know."

She moved on, marrying poet Jim Hart in 1987, but "he turned out to be gay," she says. "We're great friends, but I wish I'd known that when we were married. His boyfriends would call up here crying. . . ." They divorced in 2007, and Simon went on to a relationship with current boyfriend Richard Koehler, 59, a surgeon. "I've always had something that men found attractive," she admits. "I think it's because of my availability." So is aging tougher for someone who's used to being desired? "I'm still desired!" Simon says, smiling. "I mean, I am always thinking, 'Oh my God, that's another wrinkle?' But I figure, what am I going to do? I'm not the plastic-surgery type."

These days she's happy—"Thank God, because I have a depressive nature"—and able to recall the more painful parts of her life with equanimity. Here, in an exclusive excerpt from her memoir, she looks back on her relationship with Taylor, whom she'd fallen for even before they met. "I saw a drawing of his face on the cover of Time magazine," she says, "and I told my sister Joey, 'I'm going to marry that man.'"

Simon's and Taylor's paths had crossed briefly, first when they were children on the Vineyard and then on the music scene, but they didn't officially meet until 1971, when Taylor's manager issued a last-minute invitation to Simon to attend his concert at Carnegie Hall. She had been listening to his music over and over and didn't want to miss the chance to see him live.

He sang all the songs I loved and had learned by heart, material from his first two albums as well as Mudslide Slim, which had just been released. It was thrilling that I was so close to him. I felt a zig-zagging child's energy in my limbs, and I was smiling so broadly that my cheeks must have grown permanently wider that night.

At intermission, [my friend] Ricky and I were corralled by Nat Weiss, James's lawyer, who introduced himself. "Do you want to come meet James?" Nat asked me. Nat and I went upstairs to the band's dressing room, where there was a trashcan of ice that held every kind of cola and spritzer and Sprite-like thing you could imagine. It served as the central fire pit of the room. Everyone seemed to be enjoying the sparks as though there were marshmallows to roast. James turned toward me, and his eyes hadn't even met mine, when I said, before I could think, "If ever you want a home-cooked meal while you're here in New York, I'd love to make lunch for you."

He looked somewhere in the direction of my chin, with a quick shutter-snap of his eyelids, and answered: "What about tonight?"

"Okay, sure, sure," I said. "Yeah, please let's. Sure, lunch."

At Simon's apartment after the show, they ate Sara Lee banana cake, and she played him songs from her just-recorded album Anticipation.

James said, "Can we go lie down on your bed? I do mean just 'lie down.' " He spoke like a southern gentleman asking if he might remove his rain boots in the mudroom. After that first night, we spent hardly a night apart for many years.

Their relationship was passionate, intense but volatile, and Taylor's addictions—he was using heroin and had been in and out of rehab—complicated things. Then there were the constant temptations of their lives as dual music superstars.

From the moment we met, James and I gave each other tacit permission to write about our own fantasy loves, or even real loves, with no questions asked. Monogamy was our physical ideal, but as far as our work was concerned . . . we both needed muses, fantasies, private realities we wouldn't necessarily share with each other.

Not long before they decided to marry, Carly had a flirtation with Mick Jagger, who stopped by the studio to record backup vocals on her soon-to-be monster hit "You're So Vain."

The farther away we stood, the closer we got.

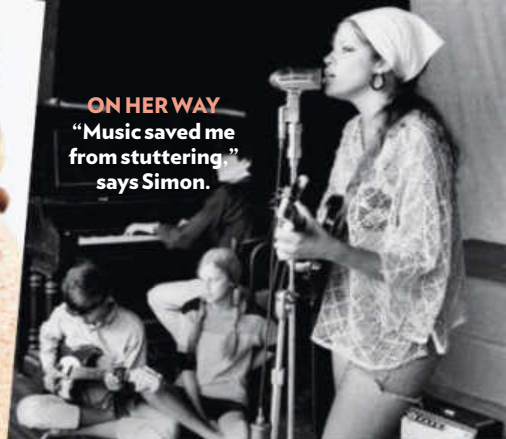

AWKWARD AGE

"I wasn't pretty at all. And I was annoying," says Simon.

"Music saved me from stuttering," says Simon.

Sally and Ben (with Taylor and Simon) are "so powerfully wonderful, both of them," Simon says.

JOHN TRAVOLTA

She didn't include it in her book ("Too much," she says), but Simon had a six-month affair with the Saturday Night Fever star. "He was more wonderful to me than any of them."

I've always loved loving

Her second ex-husband is "a dear, dear man. When I have a bad day, I call him first."

↑ WARREN BEATTY

"I adored him. He tried to get me not to marry James—he said, 'He's a drug addict.'" She finally admits in her book that Beatty inspired the second verse of "You're So Vain" (she won't say who inspired the others). Does he know? "Warren," she says, "thinks the whole thing is about him!"

MICK JAGGER

"Mesmerizing. He defines the word 'charisma,'" Simon says of Jagger (with his then-wife, Bianca).

Electricity. That's what it was. I wanted to touch his neck and he was looking at my lips. The electricity was raw and hardly disguising its power. Having sex would have actually cooled things off.

It did not end there. We spent some evenings together at the studio where he was recording. Even though I loved James more and more, Mick made me feel fantastic. I was holding back with him—not giving him exactly what he wanted—but I knew it was more than James would be all right with.

Simon and Taylor married in 1972. Their professional successes continued, and they became parents. But the marriage was slowly coming apart, and the temptations were no longer just fantasies.

James and I were both performers, private people in the public eye. Blame that or our individual natures, but the waves defining our marriage were bigger and more turbulent than in most marriages. Our love became bipolar, switching from love to hate, lust to loathing, and back again, sometimes within a day.

'There were boys I couldn't get—but I became friends with them and then snuck my glamour in'

ZEST FOR LIVING
"I'm a terrible painter, but I love it," says Simon (in her kitchen). "I'm also into trees. I want to do jewelry based on leaves."

The down-tempo unraveling began when I discovered that James had had a dalliance with one of his backup singers [in 1979]. I confronted him about it. "This isn't about you," James said coldly. But if it wasn't about me, who, then, was it about? What a way to erase me completely. James later confessed that he'd been "seeing a few other women," among them a dancer who was living in the apartment he used for rehearsals. Smarting with hurt, I embarked on my first extramarital relationship with another man.

Infidelities continued on both sides, and in 1983 they divorced. Today Simon still lives in the Vineyard home they shared; Taylor's fishing rod remains mounted above the front door. "My incredible loyalty to him, in spite of the fact that he has treated me without any regard, has been so painful to me," she says. "Through writing the book I really started to understand that I could love and not be loved—it doesn't have to be a two-way street. That was the big realization for me."

I loved James in a way that couldn't possibly be deeper or more sure. I loved him in the same way my fingers snap when the rhythm of a song synchs perfectly with my brain's own cellular clatter. I loved James not despite his broken-down spirit, but because of it. How does a person—me, or anyone else—move ahead, push forward through life? The answer is that none of us does, not entirely. I have simply found a way of loving through whatever absences or dejections have fallen like tree branches in my path. I move forward by incorporating whoever or whatever is missing or vanished into my being, my body, my breath. ●

"I never feel I'm sexy," the soccer icon told People's Elizabeth Leonard and JD Heyman. Happiest nest-ing with wife Victoria and their four kids, doing carpool and, yes, vacuuming (he's a neat freak), he's flattered to join the club: "It's a huge honor," says Beckham. "And I'm very pleased to accept."

How did Victoria respond to the news that you were the Sexiest Man Alive?

I would hope that she feels that way about me all the time anyway, but she said, "Congratulations!" We kind of laughed about it with the boys, and the boys kind of laughed at me and said, "Really? Sexiest man alive? Really?" My oldest son, Brooklyn, was the one who was like, "Are you sure it's not me that's meant to be there today?"

Growing up, did you go through any awkward phases?

I'm sure there were many awkward phases for me, but to be honest, all I was interested in was playing soccer. I never worried about what I wore or how I looked. I didn't care about attention from girls. I just wanted to play soccer. . . . I was comfortable in my own skin and a quietly confident kid. I enjoyed everything about my childhood. My parents worked hard to give me everything they could.

You got way more into fashion as you got older. Any fashion regrets?

Me and Victoria always laugh about when we went to this Gucci show and

BOXING

He hung up his pro soccer cleats in 2013, and now Beckham spars in the boxing ring three times a week with a London trainer. "I get cardio and strength work, and it keeps me focused," he says.

INDOOR CYCLING

When Beckham is in the U.S., he opts for full-body workout classes at SoulCycle (usually twice in a day!). "I do it for a week and literally see my body change," he says.

FAMILY HIKES

A go-to activity for the whole Beckham clan, hiking offers quality family time as well as a great workout. "We love to do it with the kids," he says.

PROTEIN SHAKES

After every workout he downs a protein shake. His fave recipe: coconut milk blended with crushed frozen almonds and bananas.

HEALTHY EATING

While not "ultra-regimented" when it comes to diet, Beckham goes for plenty of veggies, salad and lean protein. One splurge meal? Pizza from Lucali, an old-school Italian joint in Brooklyn.

we had on matching leather outfits, and now we're like, "What were we thinking?" We were living at her mum's house at the time, and she was getting changed in her room—we weren't allowed to stay in the same room—and I was getting changed in my room downstairs. Then we both came to the kitchen and were like, "Wow." It was a lot of leather. We still have those outfits. . . . Once I bought this suit jacket that was Galliano, so it was obviously very expensive, and it had half a pink bra hanging out of the inside pocket, sewn in. I thought it looked good, but Victoria was like, "You are not wearing that!"

What do you sleep in?

Most of the time nothing. If I have to wear something, it's underwear.

Word has it you're a neat freak. True?

I can't settle at night before everything is tidy, so I will stay up until 1:00 in the morning making sure everything is tidy, whether it's vacuuming or putting things in the dishwasher. Victoria is the opposite—she will leave her shoes in the middle of the hallway and leave her makeup out, so I go around picking everything up and closing cupboards. It's exhausting actually! My children religiously get up and make their beds—even Harper. You have to help her, but she's probably more like me than any of the kids. She'll get her clothes ready the night before.

"We still have the pieces of paper that we wrote each other's numbers on when we first met," says Victoria of their 18-year romance. "I wrote my number on the back of an aircraft ticket."

MARRIED TO THE SEXIEST MAN ALIVE... BY VICTORIA BECKHAM

What is it like to have your husband called the Sexiest Man Alive? Of course, David is incredibly good-looking. But he's more than that . . .

He's a really good person. He's a really great dad, he's very kind, charitable, and he inspires me every day.

The first time I met David, nearly 20 years ago, we were at a football match. After the game all the other players were having a drink with their friends, and David was standing with his mum and dad and his younger sister Joanne. Family is important to him. When he proposed to me, he asked my dad first, which was a very respectful thing to do.

Both of us have to travel with work, but we always make time for each other and time for the children. We always support each other and our family.

I'm proud of David as a parent; he's a really great dad. Our children are very polite, respectful, they work hard, they have great personalities and senses of humor. We're in a very privileged position, and the children are growing up to understand that. The only way we have ever spoiled them is with lots of love.

David is very romantic, and we regularly do lovely things to surprise each other. Recently I arranged a party for him in Marrakesh for his 40th birthday. It was at a beautiful hotel; his friends and all our family were there. There were thousands of candles everywhere and we had a wonderful time.

David has good taste. I like the way he dresses. He's naturally very stylish. People ask me if I have a favorite tattoo, but all of his tattoos are beautiful. They are all so personal and meaningful, and it's how he expresses himself!

Around the house, David is just David, not the Sexiest Man Alive! He is very tidy and he likes things done a certain way, which is great because I leave a mess everywhere!

I think the biggest thing people don't know about David is that he's got an incredible head on his shoulders. He's smart. He's a great businessman. He has great ideas. He's creative.

It feels odd to be asked to pick a favorite part of his body, however. I admit he has got fantastic abs!

When I found out David was the Sexiest Man Alive, I was very proud of him. What the kids are going to think is another thing. When David takes Brooklyn to school, Brooklyn makes him drop him down at the end of the street, because he thinks it's embarrassing. I'm like, "If you're embarrassed by your dad, and he's David Beckham, what chance does any other father at the school have?"

"To the younger boys I'm still cool, and to Harper I'm really cool. But to Brooklyn, not so much," says Beckham (with Victoria, Brooklyn, 16, Cruz, 10, Harper 4, and Romeo, 13).

MYSTYLESIMPLE: JEANS, BOOTS AND A T-SHIRT ♫ —DAVID BECKHAM

You've been UNICEF Goodwill Ambassador for a decade and launched 7: The David Beckham UNICEF Fund (www.7.org) to raise funds and awareness for vulnerable kids. How do you balance charity work with dad duty?

They've seen their dad retire from football, but they haven't seen me retire from working. I want them to have a good work ethic. They want to come on charity trips that I'm doing with UNICEF. Obviously their schooling is the priority, but they're well aware that their mom and dad work hard, and that's what we want to pass on to them. But as hard as we work and as much as we work, nothing ever comes before the family.

What's your favorite part of the day?

I think when all the kids are washed and bathed and we all sit watching the TV together with a cup of tea and the kids have hot chocolate. Or the other night we all sat in front of the fire pit outside and were just chatting together. I actually turned round to the kids and said, "Okay, this is Daddy's favorite part of the holiday so far." And last night we were at Disney and I almost cried watching the fireworks. Victoria and I were there with the kids, and Harper sat on one knee and Romeo sat on my other knee and it was incredible. I got a lump in my throat, and they were like, "Daddy, are you okay?" ... We're a very close-knit family, and as hard as we work and as much as we work, nothing ever comes before our kids.

A FIRST TIME FOR EVERYTHING...

MY FIRST WORD...

"Ball," believe it or not!

MY FIRST KISS...

My friend's sister Emma, (at age) 13.

MY FIRST GIRLFRIEND...

My first real girlfriend was when I was 17, and that one was three years. I was never really interested in girls that much. All I cared about was soccer.

MY FIRST CAR...

A red Ford Escort.

FIRST GIFT I GAVE TO VICTORIA...

A Cartier watch. She was on tour, and I sent it to her for her birthday. She loved it. She's still got it!

HARPER'S FIRST WORD...

I'd like to say "dada," but I think it was "mama."

THE MANE EVENT

THE LOOK

While he's changed up his styles over the years, Beckham says he actually pays little attention to his hair: "I wake up, and whatever's happening with it just happens."

THE PRODUCTS

A fan of the GQ24•7 styling line, Beckham has been known to use Elnett, "old-school hairspray," he says. "My gran uses it, so why not?"

THE WIFE

Victoria doesn't meddle in his style choices, but Beckham admits she "wasn't a fan" of his ponytailed phase.

CHECK OUT HIS BODY OF WORK!

DAVID BECKHAM HAS MORE THAN 40 TATTOOS. HERE'S A GUIDE TO SOME OF HIS FAVORITE INK SPOTS

Angel on My Shoulder

On his left shoulder, the soccer star has a reclining angel with the motto "In the face of adversity" above her. It's one of many biblical symbols, often representing Victoria and the children. "The family ones obviously mean a lot to me," he says.

Beckham's Got Back

After Brooklyn's birth in 1999, the doting dad got his oldest child's name inked on his lower back. The names of sons Romeo and Cruise bracket a large angel, whose wing is visible here. (Harper is honored with a neck tattoo.)

Knuckle Art

"The ones on my hands I like the most," says Beckham. Words from Beyoncé and Jay Z's 2014 On the Run tour, "Dream big, be unrealistic," are etched on his right knuckles. Above it is a tribute to Victoria (and 99, the year they wed, is on his thumb).

My Body Is My Cathedral

Beckham re-created Man of Sorrows, a painting by artist Matthew R. Brooks, to honor his grandfather Joe West, who died in 2009. "Many people have said to me, 'When you're 60, how is it gonna look?'" he says of his body art. "I'm not even worried about it."

Strong-Arm Treatment

A quote from Roman emperor Caligula, "Let them hate as long as they fear," sits below another angel on his crowded left arm. "When Dad is covered in tattoos, you can't really tell Brooklyn he can't get one," quips Victoria. "We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

"As a kid, I went camping many summers with the Boys & Girls Club to learn about trees, water and wildlife...an experience I never forgot (and why our products have always been cruelty free). Today, we support Waterkeeper Alliance to protect nature and keep our waterways clean for generations to come, because we care about the environment."

Chris Pratt, 36

SEXIEST SUPERSTAR

Who doesn't love a man who thanked "my spray-tan guy" and advocated for equality for the world's "beautiful women" while accepting his Guy of the Year award from Spike TV? The brawny star of Jurassic World stays level-headed because he paid his dues playing a schlub on TV. As he told Entertainment Weekly, "I've been slow-boiling."

MEN OF THE YEAR

The heartthrobs and heroes
who defined 2015

Jake Gyllenhaal, 34

SEXIEST SHAPE-SHIFTER

He is known for the ability to transform his body for a role, most recently to play a fighter in Southpaw.

For that his training included 1,000 sit-ups a day. He stayed focused, he says, because "I prefer the pain of discipline over the pain of regret."

WILL SMITH, 47

He won a Hollywood Film Award for Concussion, but his family brings true meaning. He thanked daughter Willow on her 15th birthday "for correcting my heart—and teaching me how to love without constriction or condition."

SAM HEUGHAN, 35

"The best thing about wearing a kilt," says the Scottish star of Outlander, "is that it keeps you warm, it's easy to remove, and it requires confidence."

MATT BOMER, 38

The American Horror Story: Hotel star delivers a one-two punch in nearly naked scenes on TV—and as a real-life gay-rights advocate.

"I'm always on a journey of self-discovery as an artist and a creative person," he says.

LIN-MANUEL MIRANDA, 35

The man behind Broadway's Hamilton—and a MacArthur "genius grant" recipient—has ordinary date nights with his wife. "It's Netflix and chill," he says.

ROB LOWE, 51
SEXIEST AGELESS WONDER

Although the Grinder star recently launched a men's skin-care line, he says, "The truth is that it comes from the inside—from your spirit and being engaged, excited, excitable. That's what makes you seem young."

MORRIS CHESTNUT, 46
SEXIEST LADIES' MAN

He's made a career of going shirtless, and Taraji P. Henson called him "Dark Gable. He's got it all." But the married star of the new series Rosewood wouldn't mind a little less exposure. "I want to eat some donuts every now and again," he says, "or some waffles!"

BLAKE SHELTON, 39
SEXIEST COACH

He's not only the winningest coach on The Voice, he's teaching new girlfriend Gwen Stefani that there is more to life than the city. "Oklahoma is sexy because it's full of wide open spaces," says Shelton. "There are areas where I live that there is no one around for miles and miles. That can make for some sexiness."

John Stamos, 52

SEXIEST COMEBACK

With the hit show Grandfathered, not to mention the long-awaited debut of Fuller House next year, the sitcom star has struck gold.

What keeps him grounded in Hollywood? "Longtime friends, family, exercise, and I grow tomatoes in my backyard," he says.

NEIL PATRICK HARRIS, 42

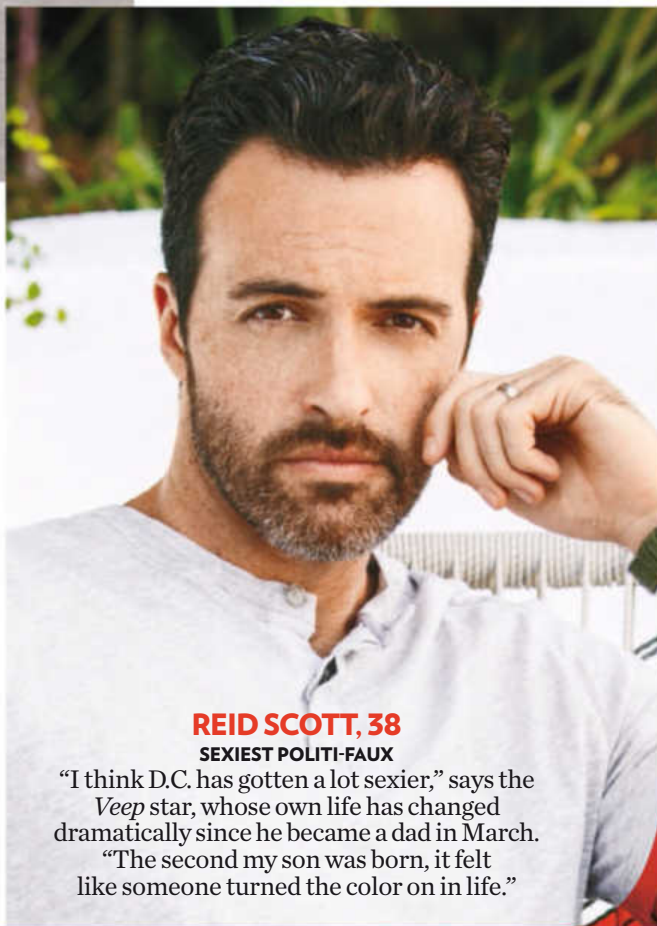

SEXIEST TRIPLE THREAT

The singing, dancing host of Best Time Ever says he has the best time "on a Hawaiian beach with a piña colada or at a Disney theme park with my family," who keep him down-to-earth. "My husband, David, knows me better than anyone in the world," says Harris. "He's dope."

JUSSIE SMOLLETT, 32

SEXIEST BREAKOUT STAR

His meteoric rise on Empire "has been an artist's dream," says the actor and singer.

REID SCOTT, 38

SEXIEST POLITI-FAUX

"I think D.C. has gotten a lot sexier," says the Veep star, whose own life has changed dramatically since he became a dad in March.

"The second my son was born, it felt like someone turned the color on in life."

LIFE
IN

TIMBERLAKE, 34*SEXIEST NEW DAD

Since the April birth of Silas Randall with wife Jessica Biel, the pop phenom has reentered the spotlight completely rejuvenated. “I’ve never slept less and dealt with more poop,” he tells People, “and been SO excited about it!”

Idris Elba, 43

SEXIEST RECORD BREAKER

This fit Brit was the first solo man to appear on the cover of Maxim, and he actually broke the British land speed record in his U.K. Discovery series Idris Elba: No Limits. But will he be the first black Bond? "If everyone wants something, they can make it happen," he said.

CHARLIE HUNNAM, 35

In July the rugged Sons of Anarchy star promises to slay in King Arthur in "the 6th-century version of jeans, a T-shirt and a hoodie."

NICK JONAS, 23

"In many ways I'm like an old man," says the singer. "I like cigars, golf and a nice glass of scotch."

ANDY COHEN, 47

On Watch What Happens Live he asks the questions, but on his AC2 city tour with Anderson Cooper he answers them. "I have been asked for a hug," he says. "I like giving hugs."

TIM MCGRAW, 48

With a new album, Damn Country Music, he stays in fighting shape by swimming and eating "oatmeal, chicken and sometimes sweet potatoes," he says. "I feel like the best years are ahead of me."

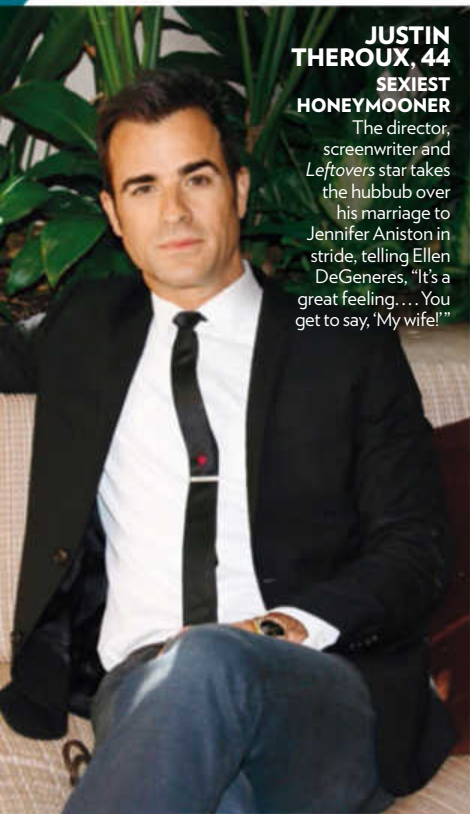

ANTHONY SADLER, 23, SPENCER STONE, 23, AND ALEK SKARLATOS, 23

SEXIEST HEROES

Rising to fame after thwarting an armed attack on a Paris-bound train in August, the three lifelong friends "are all single, so this couldn't have happened at a better time!" Stone says jokingly. The bravest thing they did in middle school? Says Skarlatos: "We TP'd the principal's house!"

Photograph by JIM WRIGHT

JUSTIN THEROUX, 44
SEXIEST HONEYMOONER

The director, screenwriter and Leftovers star takes the hubbub over his marriage to Jennifer Aniston in stride, telling Ellen DeGeneres, "It's a great feeling. ... You get to say, 'My wife!'"

Joe Manganiello, 38

SEXIEST NEARLYWED

When he ties the knot this month with Sofia Vergara, Hollywood will have a new Sexiest Couple Alive. "The best part of getting married," he says, "is not having to change anything. It's finding someone who complements me perfectly."

JOHN BOYEGA, 23
SEXIEST STORMTROOPER

The British actor, who plays Finn in Star Wars: Episode VII—The Force Awakens, got a preview of coming fame on Halloween: "Seeing all the Finn costumes was mind-blowing!" When asked to name the sexiest Star Wars lady, Boyega remains a gentleman. "All of them," he says. "These women know how to fight. They're all strong, sexy and confident."

DAVID MONAHAN, 44, AND LARRY SULLIVAN, 45
SEXIEST PITCHMEN

The real-life couple's Campbell's Soup commercials with adopted son Cooper, 3, quickly rang up nearly 1 million views. "We're happy to be that couple who put ourselves out there to just show that families come in all shapes and sizes," says Monahan.

SEXIEST SHADE OF GREY

Though Fifty Shades Darker is not set for release until 2017, the star—who has been busy shooting The Fall in Ireland—says, “I’m looking forward to embodying Christian again—and getting a chance to show more of him!” Swoon.

THEY CLEAN UP NICELY!

Michael B. Jordan, 28

"I've destroyed many of my white loads," the Creed star says of his biggest laundry mistake. "I probably threw one red sock or T-shirt into my mom's whites, and then everything came out pink." But there is one chore the actor has down. "I would consider myself a very good ironer," says Jordan. "I see little imperfections and I want to fix them. It's very soothing to see the wrinkles go away."

According to a 2015 survey, women find men who do chores sexy. These 8 stars get busy

Photographs by FINLAY MACKAY

Josh Lucas, 44

The Mysteries of Laura star's childhood responsibility of washing dishes has given him a "pathological hatred" toward the task as an adult—but it also led him to a chore he loves. "Cooking is a pure joy. It's actually a bit meditative," says Lucas. "It's cool to watch my son [Noah, 3] be like, 'This is really good!' It's also an excuse not to have to do the dishes!" His culinary specialty? "Popcorn. I'll add Parmesan or all kinds of spices. I love making complex popcorn."

Aziz
Ansari, 32

The comedian—who's dating New York chef Courtney McBroom—admits he's not the most helpful in the kitchen. "After we finish eating, I'm so full," the Master of None creator and star says. "I'll be like, 'I'll do the dishes tomorrow.'" But he does find other ways to lend a hand. "I like cleaning counters," Ansari says. "When you're done, there's a small sense of accomplishment. It's weirdly rewarding."

Anthony Mackie, 37

When it comes to tackling chores, Mackie and his wife, Sheletta Chapital, have a divide-and-conquer approach. “Cutting the grass is mine; the trash is mine; bathing the kids is mine; I’ll deal with bugs all day,” says the Night Before star. “The whole idea of marriage is to do for the other person,” adds Mackie. “We’re dedicated to taking care of each other.”

The Stars of Baby Daddy

Tahj Mowry (right) admits he usually takes a shortcut when it comes to keeping his floors tidy. “If there are clothes on the floor—throw them right in the closet, close the door. No one will know,” says the actor, 29. Derek Theler, 30 (center), also has a laid-back approach to housekeeping: “I’m cool with it looking a little bit lived in.” But both guys agree Jean-Luc Bilodeau, 25, is the messiest of the trio—a charge he doesn’t deny. “If no one’s coming over, I just let it go!”

Ryan Guzman, 28

When he was growing up in Sacramento, “chores were always something I had to do before I got to go play soccer and have fun with the other kids,” says the Heroes Reborn star. Now a self-professed “neat freak,” Guzman does all his own house-keeping but still grumbles that chores “take time away from things I love to do, like painting.” The one perk of taking out the garbage? “It’s a workout because I do eat a lot and I have a lot of trash,” he says, noting that he usually wears only boxer shorts when he cleans. “I want to be comfy. I’m single, so I don’t have to impress anyone.”

TAKE YOUR HAIR TO PARADISE

HAIR THAT SMELLS AS GOOD AS IT FEELS

PIERCE BROSNAN IN 1981

CLINT EASTWOOD CA. 1960

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON

Here's to a second generation of sexiness!

Dylan Brosnan, 18

PARENTS: Pierce Brosnan and Keely Shaye Smith
Discovered in '13 by designer Hedi Slimane, who did not know Brosnan's famous lineage, the model appears on four pages in the November Vogue with supermodel Karlie Kloss.

Scott Eastwood, 29

PARENTS: Clint Eastwood and Jacelyn Reeves

"My dad was always super-active and got me in the gym at a young age," says the actor, who first made a splash in a 2013 shirtless spread in Town & Country. This year Scott won a Teen Choice Award for The Longest Ride.

DANIEL DAY-LEWIS IN 1989

Gabriel Kane Day-Lewis, 20

PARENTS: Daniel Day-Lewis and Isabelle Adjani

A budding musician who pays the bills as an in-demand IMG model, Day-Lewis told the Evening Standard last month, "Hey, I'm ME. I'm not my parents' child."

Rafferty Law, 19

PARENTS: Jude Law and Sadie Frost

The 19-year-old has modeled for the likes of DKNY and Effra London, but he told Teen Vogue that his heart belongs to music: "My best friend Marley and I write all the songs" for their band the Dirty Harrys.

ARNOLD SCHWARZENEGGER CA. 1970

Patrick Schwarzenegger, 22

PARENTS: Arnold Schwarzenegger and Maria Shriver
Taking after his body-building dad, he was caught doing push-ups between takes of his new film Midnight Sun, of which he tweeted, "The life of playing a swimmer. Dang chest hair gone."

ICE CUBE IN 1990

O'Shea Jackson Jr., 24

PARENTS: Ice Cube and Kimberly Woodruff
Jackson had to audition to play his dad in the hit film Straight Outta Compton, an experience that he said "built confidence." In the end, Ice Cube told People, "he did a phenomenal job. I don't know if I could've done a better job playing me."

JEREMY IRONS IN 1981

JUDE LAW IN 1981

Max Irons, 30

PARENTS: Jeremy Irons and Sinead Cusack
The Woman in Gold actor, successful model and one of GQ's 50 best dressed Brits, recently told Bazaar that when he's not working, "I hang out with my girlfriend or I go to the gym, and I drink lots of tea."

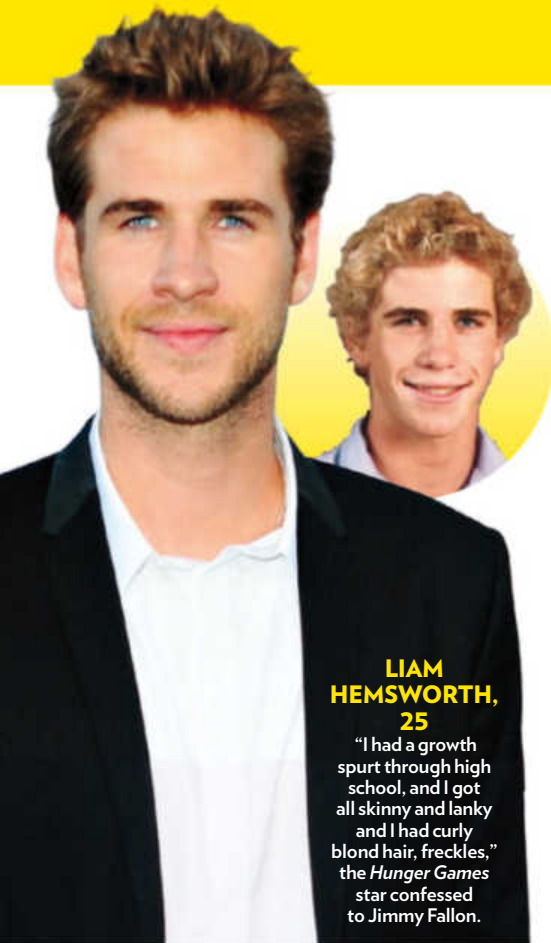

DONALD SUTHERLAND IN 1974

Rossif Sutherland, 37

PARENTS: Donald Sutherland and Francine Racette
The Reign actor—and Kiefer's half brother—had no plans to go into the family business until he replaced a no-show in a student film at Princeton. Donald was moved. "There were tears in his eyes, and he said, 'Kid, that's what you're supposed to do,'" Rossif said.

GEEKY TO GORGEOUS

Check out these smoldering superheroes—and other stars—before they were sexy!

LIAM HEMSWORTH, 25

"I had a growth spurt through high school, and I got all skinny and lanky and I had curly blond hair, freckles," the Hunger Games star confessed to Jimmy Fallon.

TAYE DIGGS, 44

Back in junior high, "I was wiry thin. I had the glasses with the tape on the side and no confidence," the actor told Elle.

NICHOLAS HOULT, 25

Shooting to fame at 13 in 2002's About a Boy, the English actor has said, "I've changed so much since then that I'm not the same person."

JOSH PECK, 29

Once a chubby teen Nickelodeon star, the Grandfathered actor told People, "I get to watch my weird years in reruns."

DEREK HOUGH, 30

As a child dancer in Utah, "I was punched in the face, pretty aggressively in the stomach. I was tied up in trees," he told People.

PAUL RUDD, 46

"Puberty hit me pretty hard," the Ant-Man star told GQ. "All of a sudden I woke up and I had really curly hair... I looked like Bruno from Fame."

TREVOR NOAH, 31

The dimpled host of The Daily Show described himself as a "nerdy little child" who spent his time indoors reading.

HENRY CAVILL, 32

Long before he played Superman, "I was Fat Cavill," he told Details. "I bawled on the phone to my mom four times a day."

Macklemore, 32, with tabby Cairo

"Cairo saved my life," says the rapper (real name Ben Haggerty), who has been open about his 2014 drug relapse. "I was in trouble with my wife, Tricia. Cairo gave us something to bond over." Now, he says, the couple—who welcomed daughter Sloane in May—can count on the 1-year-old cat for "unconditional love."

SEXIEST TRAINER ALIVE

Angelo Grincerì, 28

As a fitness pro for more than 10 years and a trainer at ModelFIT, the New York gym frequented by Taylor Swift and model Karlie Kloss, Grincerì knows the key to staying healthy is balance. (For example, he sticks to a mostly raw diet with the occasional pizza.) Says the author of the upcoming book Intrinsic Strength Training: “I believe wellness should be a combination of being physically active, taking care of yourself and still having a good time.”

head-to-toe Happiness

A healthy baby is a happy baby! Mommy blogger Brianne Manz, founder of strollerinthecity.com, shares her favorite ways to have fun with your child while allowing you both to get a little exercise.

Being active with your baby requires very few essentials, and can go a long way when it comes to being fit and healthy.

BRIANNE MANZ, FOUNDER
STOLLERINTHECITY.COM

STROLLER EXERCISE

Living in New York City, pushing a stroller down a busy sidewalk can be serious cardio, but organized classes are definitely more fun! It's a challenging workout for you and a sensory experience for your baby. Do squats while facing your baby to get some silly smiles.

BABY GYMNASTICS

My daughter has a ton of energy. Gym programs give her the chance to move, crawl and tumble while building her coordination. Praise your baby with positive response like clapping or cuddling and revel in his or her pure delight.

MOMMY & ME YOGA

I've always been a yogi kind of gal, so I couldn't wait to get back to the mat after the birth of my son. I found a group at my gym that gave me the chance to ease back into yoga, while providing a bonding experience that included singing and gentle stretches to help calm my baby.

FAMILY SWIM

The pool can be a positive place. Where else can you get this level of face-to-face, skin-to-skin contact with your baby? You get to play an active role during classes, so splash around and don't worry if your body's not exactly swimsuit ready!

No matter what type of activity you choose or where you go, Dr. Smith's® has a diaper rash treatment in just the right size and application to keep the relief you need for your baby easily on hand. doctorsmiths.com

MY PLAN TO BECOME SEXIEST MAN ALIVE... SOMEDAY

BY JAMES CORDEN

The 37-year-old host of The Late Late Show explains it all

People seem to confuse being hot and being sexy. I struggle to see how a man who spends two hours at a gym every day is sexy to a woman. What you really want is a guy who knows how to cook a lasagna, will eat it with you and not judge you for going back for more. And then cuddle you and look after you and make you feel safe and have fun in the bedroom. That's the thing: No one wants to be with a guy who's like, "Oh, I have to wait until I'm on my cheat day; let's have a green juice." Women want a man who says, "I'm going to cook for you, then we're going to eat it and watch The Late Late Show, and then, if you're not too tired, we're going to have a damn good time."

Let's be honest, if I were ever to be named Sexiest Man Alive, I would first owe a huge gratitude to my publicist. As does Nick Nolte, for that matter. And then I'd frame the cover. And then any time we had a guest on the show who's considered hot, like a Hemsworth brother, I'd probably accidentally leave the magazine lying around their dressing room. I'd go, "Oh, I'm so sorry, how embarrassing for you to have to see that." And they'd be like, "But, James, there are 20 copies in here." And I'd say, "I don't even know. I actually haven't even seen it." And they'll go, "Then why have you tattooed it on your back?" "Okay, that's enough out of you, Hemsworths! You don't know how to cook a lasagna." Although I bet they do. Those boys seem like they've got the right balance.

The truth is I'm sure I should do a little more of the working out. But this is all part of my plan to peak when I'm 40. Granted, I am only three years away from that now, so I really need to start putting broccoli in my mouth. You have to understand that a magazine in the U.K. named me the "No. 1 weirdest crush." I was like, "This is the greatest thing I could ever be called!" You're looking at a man whose favorite compliment I've ever had

"MY FAVORITE COMPLIMENT I'VE EVER HAD FROM SOMEONE ON THE STREET WAS 'YOU REMIND ME OF A FAT MATT DAMON' "

—JAMES CORDEN
POSSIBLE FUTURE SEXIEST MAN ALIVE

from someone on the street was “You remind me of a fat Matt Damon.” I was bouncing around the room when I got told that, like, “Yes! Thank you! And you’re kind of right!”

Thank God my wife is so sweet and adorable. I always make the same joke with waiters in restaurants about the specials board: “Well, if they were that special, you’d put it on the menu.” It’s not even funny, but bless her, she always gives a chuckle, and that’s all you really want. At least I try—because really, these chiseled dudes, they’re going to be so boring when they’re 60. A few jokes, an opinion on something and an ability to talk and listen, in my experience, that’s what a woman really wants.

As a father of two young children, I’ve found that if you are holding your child, your sexiness goes up a minimum of 25 percent. I mean, being a dad isn’t always sexy. If you are lugging bags and a stroller and you’ve filled the stroller with more bags, then you just look like you’re fleeing Syria. But if you can get one of those kids on your shoulders or under your arm, then women just go, “Oh. My. God. This man is amazing.”

I do not, however, have a good dad bod. A good dad bod is like Paul Rudd. He looks after himself but not to the point where he’s a prick about it. Josh Duhamel was on the show, and I looked at him and thought, It’s ridiculous that technically we’re the same species. He’s a sexy dad.

Really, how you look first in the morning is bad for everyone. No one wakes up looking their best. The problem with me is I forget what I look like. In my head I look a lot hotter. And then I’ll see myself in a photo and be like, “Oh God, I’ve got to do something about this!” Truthfully, the best photo I’ve ever seen of myself was taken on Google Earth. That’s the distance I’m happy with being photographed.

But again, this is all part of my strategy. In about two years, People magazine is going to be running a piece like, “Holy sh—, when did he get so hot?” And there will be a shot of me on the beach with an iPod strapped to my arm and shades on. How will I accomplish all this? I plan it every Sunday night about 11 p.m. I think, “Right, that’s it now, enough. Tomorrow. Piece of fruit. Water all day. Salad, fish and vegetables.” And then I walk into work, and before I’ve even put my coat down, there’s a bagel in my mouth. My wife, bless her, is very fit. We went on a hike last week, and I did enjoy it. That is something we are going to try doing more of. And I’m going to start taking street-dance classes. Yeah, I said it. I’m going to start going on Saturday mornings with my wife. I’m going to make a commitment. To dance like no one who has ever been People’s Sexiest Man Alive before, except for maybe Hugh Jackman. But I bet he can’t cook a lasagna.

THE OSCAR WINNER, 54, RETURNS AS PRESIDENT COIN IN THE HUNGER GAMES: MOCKINGJAY, PART 2

Last time I was scared

When my dog caught a rat in the backyard. And it's irrational because it's not like the rat is going to hurt me. I was going out to water the garden, and our two dogs were looking at something. I went over, and it was a rat, and I just screamed. I was terrified.

Last injury

Well, it's not an injury, but I had an appendectomy a few weeks ago. It was crazy. I was like, "What the hell is happening?!" Now I just show everybody pictures of my appendix whether they ask or not. It's really gross.

Last time I cursed

I try not to. It always just slips out at home, when I don't want it to in front of my children. Something silly happens; I drop something and I'm like, "Oh s---." But when I'm thinking about it, I don't.

Last time I danced

Probably in the car after I pick up my daughter [Liv, 13] from school. I listen to the radio and I dance in my seat until she tells me to stop. She always says to me, "Stop ruining it!"

Last moment of bliss

Maybe when they gave me [painkiller] Dilaudid at the hospital? I had been in so much unbearable pain, I thought I was going to die. I was like, "This is fantastic!"
